MEMORANDUM

March 27, 2020

To:     Consortium of State Public Safety Executives and Governor’s Criminal Justice Policy Advisor Network and State Public Executives
From:  National Governors Association
Re:     Law Enforcement and Stay-at-Home Orders

As the number of COVID-19 cases increases, governors are taking action to limit the spread of the disease, including issuing “stay-at-home” orders and other executive actions. Stay-at-home orders include enforcement measures, which often provide criminal penalties for failure to comply with the order. This memorandum provides information and examples of how state and local law enforcement are informing patrolling officers and the public regarding the enforcement of these orders and guidance from national organizations on law enforcement response during the COVID-19 crisis.

In addition to the following state and local examples, the attached chart lists enforcement provisions included in the current statewide stay-at-home orders and relevant state statutes.

Examples of Law enforcement Roles in Enforcing Stay at Home Orders:

- Directives on Authority to Detain. Santa Clara County issued guidance clarifying the authority to detain individuals following the shelter-in-place order. The order clarifies that officers will not consider the fact that a person is outside of his/her residence the sole factor in support of reasonable suspicion to detain. (LINK).
- Nonessential Business Compliance Checks. The City of Las Vegas law enforcement can provide compliance checks on businesses with mandated closures or limitations of business and provide notice to the community about such checks. (LINK)
- General Guidance to Law Enforcement on Order. City of Houston law enforcement provided guidance to officers in enforcing Harris County’s Stay Home, Work Safe order as well as the city’s business closure order. The guidance includes requirements for supervisory approval prior to citations and arrests. (LINK)
- Public Communication and Notice.
  - Illinois provided some guidance to the public through their FAQ page regarding enforcement of the stay-at-home order. (LINK) The guidance indicated that Illinois State Police will work with local law enforcement to enforce the order but encouraged voluntary adherence. Law enforcement is more likely to intervene if they witness or receive reports of:
    - crowds of people gathering, especially if packed closely together or not social distancing;
    - flagrant violation, such as a bar or restaurant having a room full of customers eating, or a movie theater continuing to operate; and employees being asked to report to work in-person where the business is not supposed to be open or appropriate social distancing precautions are not taking place.

- Similarly, Oregon state police provided guidance to the public on enforcement of the stay-at-home order. Through this guidance the state police responded to frequently asked questions, including: “Are police arresting or ticketing people in public or in violation of the Governor’s Executive Order?” (LINK)

- “People that violate the Governor’s Order in an Emergency Declaration could be arrested or cited, which is a C Misdemeanor—the lowest level of criminal conduct designation. All Oregon law enforcement are united on the premise that police action is extremely undesirable, and we hope to educate Oregonians if congregating in violation of the Governor’s Order. Citation or arrest would be an extreme last resort if a person failed to comply with the lawful direction of a police officer.”

Guidance from federal agencies and national organizations:

- International Association of Chiefs of Police: Law enforcement agencies should work closely with their public health partners at the state and local level to gain a clear understanding of the specific order(s) and penalties for violations as well as how best to respond to violations at the local level
  (Source: IACP, COVID-19: Law Enforcement’s Role in Enforcing Public Health Protections)
  (LINK)

- International Association of Chiefs of Police: Legal precedence generally provides that law enforcement officers may enforce compliance should a person fail to comply with a quarantine order. The officer should maintain a copy of the order and a clear understanding of how it is to be enforced. (Source: IACP, COVID-19: Law Enforcement’s Role in Enforcing Public Health Protections) (LINK)

- Bureau of Justice Assistance: Coordinated communications, establishing mechanisms to share information across agencies at the state and local level. Public information officers (PIOs) from law enforcement, fire, and public health departments, local hospitals, and other local agencies can work to ensure that agency representatives are delivering consistent and complementary messages about the emergency. BJA, Communication and Public Health Emergencies: A Guide for Law Enforcement (LINK)

Additional general guidance on local law enforcement decision making processes in response to COVID-19:

- The Burlington, North Carolina Police Department has used the Critical Decision Making Model (CDM) to guide officers' response during the COVID-19 pandemic. Their guidance uses the same structure as the standard CDM, with specific recommendations on applying the five steps of the CDM to the COVID-19 response.
