Scott announced his proposal for a $400 million economic relief and recovery package, using funds from the $1.25 billion the state received from the CARES Act. The two-phase proposal will start with $310 million for immediate relief to the most affected sectors and businesses, to be followed by $90 million for long-term recovery efforts. The Agency of Commerce and Community Development and the governor will work with the legislature to pass the relief package.  Virginia plans to send $650 million in federal financial aid to local governments. Gov. Northam informed local governments of the state's plan but has made no decision about the remaining $650 million allocated but not guaranteed to local governments under the CARES Act.
